Daily report by Brandon :

Thursday

Well like everyday we all woke up around 7:30 and got ready to go to Bishop High School. When we arrived, unlike the previous day, we divided into streams : the science stream had physics, the literature stream had classes with mister Guespin and the economical and social stream (which is the most hardworking stream ;)) attended an economics class and EDPM.

After the classes we went back to the hotel where we studied creative writing with Mr. Guespin. Afterwords we found our way back to the school where we watched a choir rehearse for some kind of event or competition. When that was over, we were kindly invited by the teachers and headmasters to eat a meal freshly and exclusively prepared by the school chef for us.

After leaving the school, we went back to the hotel and we rested before to attend a very lively class prepared by M.Guespin on a poem written by an american writer named Maya Angelou. The class ended with a passionate debate about the interpretations of the poem, we almost went to a fight ! Then we went out and had a marvelous meal as a family.
